The 3 Explorer's 1813 Journey

Meeting one of our guides at Glenbrook Information Centre, retrace the remarkable 1813 journey, while travelling across the Blue Mountains on board your own coach or minibus.

See a significant section of the original 1813 route as we travel through Wentworth Falls; and hear accounts of this journey from Gregory Blaxland's journal. Consider continuing on to Mount York where the Explorers realised they had crossed the Blue Mountains.

Cox's 1814/15 Convict Road, Mt York

Immerse yourselves into dramatic Australian Colonial History, as we examine the physical evidence of these old roads, and their impact on unsuspecting English travellers who ventured through this exceptional upper Blue Mountains location.

Selected readings from original journals, and letters add to the sense of 'being there'. In addition to its history, this location has superb views, so bring a camera! Please bring a bottle of water, and wear comfortable walking shoes.

A Walk Around Mount Victoria Village

While on a leisurely stroll around this delightful upper Blue Mountains Village, examine the role 'Mount Vic' played in the tourist trade of the early - mid 20th Century. Old photos, 1913 celebration programmes, humorous newspaper articles, and memories of elderly residents form the basis of the tour commentary. At the end of the tour, consider having a poke around the antique shops, or having some refreshments at the Imperial Hotel, which is itself a historic landmark.

This tour lasts one and a half hours, and is an easy grade.

A Coalmine within a Rainforest

At the base of Scenic World's railway ride, you will find an intriguing world where rainforest and a coalmine once lived side by side. Come on a walking tour there, and hear stories of the turn of the 20th Century coalmine, and its miners, while taking in the scenery of glorious Blue Mountains rainforest. There are spectacular views on this tour, so bring a camera. Many old photos and artifacts are included in the tour commentary.

This tour lasts one and a half hours, and is predominantly an easy grade.
